2016 Danica Seleskovitch Prize: Call for nominations

The prize is awarded to professional conference interpreters and translation scholars in recognition of outstanding service or original research.

Last updated: August 23, 2016

The eleventh Danica Seleskovitch Prize will be awarded by the Danica Seleskovitch Association in 2016.

The prize, which has a value of €2,000 and was established in 1991 to carry forward the work of Danica Seleskovitch, is awarded to professional conference interpreters and translation scholars in recognition of their outstanding service to the interpreting profession or their original research in translation studies.

Your contribution is essential. If you would like to nominate someone who meets these criteria and would be worthy of the Prize, please submit your nomination along with a summary of that person's qualifications and accomplishments by June 30, 2015 at the latest.

The award ceremony will take place early in 2016 in the Danica Seleskovitch Lecture Hall at the Ecole Supérieure d'Interprètes et de Traducteurs (ESIT), University of Paris III - Sorbonne Nouvelle.

Please send nominations and supporting documentation to:
prix@g1csxdehhts.danica-seleskovitch.org

Please find more information here: http://www.danica-seleskovitch.org/prix.html

Recommended citation format: